The chief of the weather bureau has sent out a circular to the press designating what is a tornade and what is a cyclone, and defining the difference between them. A tornado is thus described:

"The tornado is a sudden outburst of wind in an otherwise quiet, sultry atmosphere; it is ushered in by a loud, indescrit able roar, similar to a continuous roll of thunder; its path is very narrow-seldom more than 500 fee: wide at greatest destruction. A tornade may be considered as the result of an extreme development of conditions which otherwise produce thunderstorms.

The cyclone is another and a bigger thing. The weather bureau thus describes it:

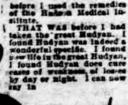

"A cyclone, on the other hand, is very broad storm, oftentimes 1,000 miles in diameter, and sometimes can be followed half around the world. The cyclone winds often rise to hurricane force, but are not to be compared with the extreme violence of the tornado, before which the most solid structures are raised."

Just at present the country is suffering from a tornado of abuse at the mouths of the anti eilver orators, and press. When the returns are all in and the battle is decided in favor of ailver the country will have learned what a cycloue is.
